THE 1938

A PUBLICATION OF THE JUNIOR OSKALOOSA,

QUAKER

CLASS OF WILLIAM PENN COLLEGE IOWA

Foreword

This work has a double objective. Every school has a two-fold character; the two component parts are the academic and social life. The aim of this work, therefore, is to tell the story of William Penn College — its faculty and students - at work and at play, accompanied by a descriptive account of campus activities. The two parts, the narrative of the story, and a description of the activities go band in band in each division. The theme of this book is informal and modern, intended to serve as a return visit to the campus for the members of the class of 1938 and to refresh their memories when they have become dimmed by time and distance. Quality rather than quantity characterizes this 1938 "Quaker."

Dedication

In the selection of a dedicatee, the class of 1939 has chosen a person in whom the ideals of character, perseverance, service, and understanding are deeply instilled. Thus, we dedicate this volume to Dr. Ella Harrison Stokes. It is not only for ber thirty years of undaunted effort in establishing a nationally recognized Department of Education but also for ber unselfish devotion to students and "Leir problems. It is for these qualities that she will be forever deeply admired and respected. Her unceasing loyalty in the quest for knowledge has been an inspiration to all who have come under her superior guidance.

PART ONE

The School

A school is judged by its physical plant, faculty, and student body.

PART TWO

The Athletics

The spirit of cooperation is evidenced by the large number who participate in athletics.

PART THREE

The Activities

Activities offer opportunities for self expression outside of the classroom.

PART ONE

In this section we present the faculty, the various classes, and scenes of our Alma Mater.

Farewell

 $B_{\mathcal{Y}}$ HENRY EDWIN McGREW, D.D.

Dear Members of class 1938:

Life is everywhere thronged with adventure, all progress is attended by its challenge.

Beyond the sunset close of every achievement is the portal of a new day with lure of the undiscovered and the unknown.

The college has the unique function of receiving and after four years then sending forth.

What an adventure it was for you to start to college. It was an approach into other realms. Now achievement seems near at hand, then new, splendid, holy adventure.

At the threshold of approach into a great needy, bewildered world, your college, your dear old Penn College, would speak a word of gratitude for your coming and breathe a prayer for blessing on your going.

Yours sincerely,

EDWIN McGREW, President.

Senior Class History

And now we are about to leave Penn College! After four years of both labor and recreation we are now to step out of college with the confidence deep in our hearts, as so many graduates before us have had, that surely there is somewhere a place for each of us in the affairs of the world at this time.

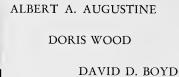

We are to be graduated as teachers, ministers, musicians, home-makers, business men and women, and workers in various other fields; but, what ever we may do, we will strive to keep within our minds and, above all else, to manifest in our lives the ideals which William Penn College has held before us and the foundations she has helped to build.

Having enjoyed many pleasant times upon the campus, we leave with a grateful appreciation for the service which William Penn College has given us, and a strong determination to be of service to her through the best kind of service to the world.

The 1936 "Quaker" made predictions of great success and fame for the class of '39, and in no way has this prediction lacked fulfilment. The Junior Class of 1939 is one of the largest Junior classes which the Penn campus has seen for some time. Although the class is large it has not assumed the superior attitude of the Seniors nor remained as naïve as the Sophomores and Freshmen.

The class of 1939 has always been united, but this year the unity has become a true friendship, as evidenced by the class parties which we have held. But the outstanding example of this unity is in the publication of this edition of the "Quaker." Every Junior has given much of time and money to present this yearbook to the Seniors.

In September the Juniors helped the Freshmen plan their "rock fight," and introduced them into some of the mysteries of campus life. During Freshman week the Juniors entertained them by giving a watermelon feed.

This year the Junior Class has made an excellent record in scholarship, athletics, activities, music, and forensics, and next year we all hope to learn much, through books and other activities, so that we will be prepared to lead an active life.

The Sophomore Class which returned this year was one filled with enthusiasm and the ideals for which Penn stands. There was a slight depletion in the Sophomore ranks, but new members replaced those who had fallen by the wayside.

It became evident quite early that this group was conscientious in its work. Was it in order that they might make an impression on the several new members of the faculty under the new administration of Dr. McGrew?

History was made and a precedent was established by this class in regard to Freshman initiation. This class, for the first time in the history of the school, unanimously voted against hazing and initiation. As a result the formal initiation of former years was not held.

The achievements of this class in the past two years have been noteworthy in the fields of scholarship, activities, and athletics. The Sophomore Class furnished several outstanding players for the football and basketball teams.

Athletic abilities are not limited to the boys. The girls did their share in furnishing material for the girls' team in basketball.

Having completed two successful years, the Sophomores are looking foreward to a year of even greater success.

September 6, 1937, was the entrance day for fifty-four timid, green, Freshmen to William Penn College. They were to be known as the Class of 1941. Much of the first week was spent getting organized, seeing advisors, Miss Conover, — and the Business Office. This left only two things to be done — learning how to wear green caps and what "starvation point" was.

Since there was no formal initiation, the only worry of the Freshman Class was the "rock fight" held on the dawn of Penn Day. The rock was green.

The Freshmen have supported, with unlimited enthusiasm and energy, every college enterprise, whether it be in the field of athletics or in other lines of endeavor. In athletics, the class ranks among the highest in number of representatives on the various college teams. Several members held important positions on the football and basketball teams. In the varsity tournament the Freshmen were the winners.

The other fields of endeavor in which they entered brought equal results. Their float won first prize in the Homecoming Day parade; they have also been prominent in forensic and musical work.

In short they are a typical group of ambitious Freshmen, who will go far at Penn.

Football Squad

Although the Penn gridders failed to hit their winning stride this season, their scores show an improvement over preceding seasons.

Under the supervision of Coach Willard Whalin, making his debut at Penn this season, the Quakers won one game, tied one, and lost five. Captain Howard Williams, quarterback, Tom Constantine, reserve end, and Weston Melson, reserve guard, are all that will be lost to the team for the forthcoming season. The loss of Captain Williams will be strongly felt; he will leave a vacancy that will be hard to fill.

The '37 season saw Bainbridge, Watson, Dollar, De Vault, Dye, and Mc-Cormick, all Freshmen, in action. This experience should have prepared them for any and all conference competition next year. The Sophomores put Anderson, Ruby, Neal, Clark, and Ver Steeg on the field, while the Juniors contributed Ragan, Weatherwax, Braafhart, Deadman, Scheuermann, and D. Williams.

FAMOUS WORDS OF FAMOUS MEN:

Braafhart — tackle — "Wartburg's nasal clampers didn't hamper Ben, Jr., but tempered Ben, Jr."

DE VAULT — guard — My theory is, "Don't stay out of school too long; it fattens you."

DOLLAR — end — "I sure don't like the Dubuque cutbacks."

DyE — guard — "The competitive spirit is always in line."

McCorмick — back — "Freshmen always help the team somewhat."

Melson — guard — "All I saw was 'black streaks' in the Parsons game."

RAGAN — Captain Elect — back — "When in doubt push the button."

Ruby — tackle — "I like to play in the backfield — of the opposing team."

VER STEEG — end — "I like to see good punting."

Weatherwax — center — "There is this much about it, theoretically we should have beaten Parsons."

WILLIAMS, D. — guard — "The bench was made for little fellas anyway."

WILLIAMS, H. — Captain — "We'd better punt now than be sorry later."

Basketball Team

The Penn cagers went to the mat in some real thrillers this season, although they did not compile a very impressive record.

The season saw the "Fighting Quakers" lose to Columbia, second placers in the conference, by one point in the last minute; win from Wartburg and Parsons by one point; lose to Central by three points; and win by two points over Parsons in their second meeting, making three conference wins and one non-conference win.

The Quakers entertained Jesse Owens, famous Olympic runner, and his all-star negro Olympians.

Constantine — Honorary Captain — "I always like to get at least three fouls."

DAY — forward — "The elimination of the center jump gives the little fella a chance."

DEADMAN — guard — "I wonder if the referees ever feel self-conscious."

RENAUD — forward — "I'm a tellin' you, those guys were hot."

TRENT — forward — "The way those guys ride me at times, a saddle would be too exclusive."

Watson — center — "I wonder if I oughta go out for practice to-night; should I, coach?"

Lee Shoop was elected manager by the athletic teams, and approved by the faculty. As manager, Shoop put in many hours of work which many don't realize, washing jerseys, caring for equipment, and running errands for the coach and players. Shoop also helped with the advertising of many athletic events through the year. He is from Austin, Minnesota.

SCHEDULE

April 16, 1938 Penn-Central meet (here).

April 23, 1938 Open.

April 29-30, 1938 Drake Relays (Des Moines).

May 13, 1938 Penn, Central, Simpson, Parsons, Iowa Wesleyan meet (Indianola).

May 20-21, 1938 Iowa Conference meet (Indianola).

Track as an intercollegiate sport in past years has not been participated in as actively as the other sports. Due to new interest and materials it is again gaining prominence.

Some eleven men have faithfully reported for work outs each evening under the direction of Coach Willard Whalin.

All of the classes except the Senior Class is represented. The Freshmen contributed Charles Bainbridge, Henry Clay, Ambrose Dollar, Dale De Vault, Eugene Meek, Kenneth Nelson, William Trent and Roy Watson. Sophomores are represented by Gerald Anderson, Harold Ruby, and Clarence Sparks. Junior trackmen included Herbert Heald and Van Henkle.

There has been an active interest shown in tennis at Penn this year. The Spring practice began in late April with six men coming out for the team. Two Seniors, Constantine and H. Williams; two Juniors, Deadman and Morris; and two Freshmen, Day and James composed the team.

The team represented the college at several inter-collegiate tennis matches. Constantine and Williams will be lost by graduation.

Swimming

The swimming program at William Penn College this year was capably handled by William Holmes, assistant physical director at the local Y.M.C.A. The classes, which were held for physical education credit, met twice a week; the classes met in the evening.

The classes were held for both beginning and advanced swimmers, instruction being given in the principles of swimming, the American crawl, the back stroke, and other important strokes. In response to student demand, a class in life saving was conducted by Mr. Holmes who is an authorized member of the Red Cross.

The scarcity of time and the conflicting programs of various students prevented any intercollegiate swimming meets from being held. However, there has been interest and action in the swimming program for this year.

Penn Reserves

The Penn Reserve squad is composed of those players who are not of varsity caliber, those who desire some recreation, and those wishing to secure physical education credit. Players are promoted from this squad to the varsity, and sometimes are demoted from the varsity to the reserve squad.

During the regular season the reserve squad participated in the class "A" basketball league at the local Y.M.C.A. athletic organization; teams of college caliber play in this league, offering stiff competition and good experience to the members of the reserve squad. Teams from surrounding cities are included in this league.

Approximately six teams are represented, each team playing every week and each team playing the other teams in the league two or three times during the season.

The following men played during the season: Carlson, Criss, De Vault, Dye, Dillon, Dollar, Harris, Heald, Jones, Kenoyer, Latham, Shoop, Sorden, Smith, and H. Williams.

The team was handled by W. C. Ragan under the direction of Coach Whalin.

Baseball, having been revived only three years ago at William Penn College, has become one of the major college sports. The letter "P" is given to those men who qualify. This year fifteen men answered the call of the bats. Three home games and three out of town games were scheduled by Coach Whalin.

By their words ye shall know them.

CRISS: "I'm as good as the younger boys yet."

DEADMAN: "I'm good; I'm from Chicago."

DILLON: "This year I have a female inspiration."

DOLLAR: "I'm only a rookie, but willing to learn."

HARRIS: "I wish the coach would build his team around me."

JONES: "The love season conflicts with baseball."

KENOYER: "I won two pair of pants from Harris and Sorden so beware boys as I feel a heating streak coming on."

RENAUD: "I come from a long line of gripers."

SORDEN: "My attitude is better this spring."

TRENT: "I am a sincere aspirant."

VAN DONSELAAR: "I wish Christy taught baseball."

VER STEEG: "I'm a one man team."

WATSON: "I could do better if McCormick was here."

WEATHERWAX: "Batting is my strength: girls is my weakness."

WILLIAMS, H.: "I'm planning on a good year."

Women's Athletics

There is much interest in women's athletics at Penn. The activities are designed to give the girls exercise and at the same time to teach them the fundamentals of the different games. Every girl in college is eligible for participation in the athletic contests. The program for the women is centered around the Physical Education classes and the Intramural sports.

Throughout the year the girls participate in the seasonal sports: soccer, kittenball, basketball, tennis, and swimming. Recognition is given for superior work done in gym classes.

Basketball

SCHEDULE

January 9, 1938	High School (here)
February 7, 1938	High School (here)
February 28, 1938	Deep River (there)
March 4, 1938	High School (here)
March 21, 1938	Business Girls (here)

This year a great deal of interest has been shown in girl's basketball. Practice began in the latter part of the first semester, with twenty-six girls out to try for the class and varsity teams. There has been no difficulty in getting enough girls for the teams.

No inter-collegiate basketball games were held, but five games with outside teams were played during this year's season. But in these five games the "Fighting Quakeresses" were victorious in all but one.

In the first game of the season with the high school quintet, the Quakers started off with a rush and piled up a score of 48 to 15. The return engagement, held February 7, found the girls winning with the score board saying 13 to 9. Probably the most interesting and hard fought game was with Deep River, the score — Penn 21, Deep River 24. Two other games were played, one with the high school and one with the Business Girls — Penn won both games.

College Council

OFFICERS

President	Dr.	McGrew
Acting-President	Mr.	Russell
Secretary	WESLEY	George

The College Council meets the first Wednesday of every month. The purpose of these meetings is to make suggestions that will promote and preserve the best customs and traditions of college life, and to advocate advisable reforms. In the most democratic manner possible, the problems of the college are discussed and recommendations are made for the necessary changes. This council is composed of representatives of the different campus organizations, seven faculty representatives, and three councilmen-at-large.

The members of the Faculty Council appointed by the President include: President McGrew, Professors Russell, Mattison, Betts, A. Ellis, Jenkins and Heald.

The student representatives and the organizations which they represent are:

Floribel Andrews Junior Class
Albert Augustine Senior Class
Dorothy Butcher Women's Athletic Association

House Council

OFFICERS

President	()	MILDRED HADLEY
Secretary		ELIZABETH MILLETT
Treasurer		Virginia Reynolds

The Women's Residence Building is governed and administered by a representative body known as the House Council. The membership is democratic in that a representative is chosen from each floor, and from each college class. In this way the women who live in the dormitory formulate the rules under which they operate.

The dormitory hostess is also a member of the House Council. Mrs. Charles Lampman has admirably filled this position.

The dormitory girls sponsor a number of social functions during the year. However, the main social event of the college year is the Spring Open House at which the girls invite the other college students and friends to inspect Dormitory life. This year Open House was held April 8.

The William Penn College Young Men's Christian Association is open to all men among the students and faculty. To each one is extended the hand of fellowship and co-operative Christian living.

The main ideal, which the Y.M.C.A. has been working for this year, has been to create a more abundant social and recreational life, and a more extensive and practicable spiritual life on our campus.

In planning the programs and social events, the association cabinet has endeavored to make them of such a nature that they would play a vital part in developing integrated Christian personalities.

The programs this year covered a large field of practical events, including peace, youth's problems, etc. The most noted speaker of the year was Dr. Willard O. Trueblood, world-famous religious personality and Friend.

The Y.W.C.A. is one of the most active campus organizations. Its meetings, which are held every Tuesday morning, are varied. This year the meetings have been educational, social, and spiritual. In discussion groups solutions to practical problems have been presented.

The purpose of this organization may be found in these rules. "We unite in the desire to realize full and creative life through a growing knowledge of God. We determine to have a part in making this life possible for all people. In this task we seek to understand Jesus and follow Him."

The aim of Y.W.C.A. is to help unify the religious and social life of the young women on the campus. Other members of the cabinet were: H. Rice, M. M. Hoar, K. Latham, D. Wood, T. Johnson, T. Edwards, D. Butcher, M. Hadley, F. Andrews, M. Summers.

The Women's Athletic Association, which has been an active campus organization for many years, has developed into an active organization containing all the college girls.

It is the purpose of this organization to develop interest among the women in athletics. Several meetings were held during the year.

A point system has been established whereby the girls winning a certain number of points receive awards. All awards must be earned by the end of the Junior year.

The aim of the Pep Club is to promote pep and enthusiasm of the whole student body and to show loyalty on the campus.

Penn College has had a Pep Club since the year 1927, when in September of that year the first meeting was held, and Martha Berry was elected Captain.

In past years the Pep Club has made it a tradition to lead the Home Coming Parade. In their regulation uniforms, the members of the Pep Club must be present at all athletic games and events throughout the year to help lead the cheering and to promote good sportsmanship and general enthusiasm.

This year the club has had three able leaders: the Captain, Doris Edwards; the Sponsor, Miss Alice Moe; and the able cheer leader, Tommy Crawford.

The Green Peppers Club is the Freshman girls' pep organization. All Freshman girls are eligible. Their aim is to promote enthusiasm and good will. Virginia Henning was president; Margaret Carter, vice-president; and Helen Mather, secretary-treasurer.

March 4, 1938 March 24, 25, 26, 1938 State Debate Tournament at Des Moines District debate and forensic tournament for high April 15, 1938 schools

The debate team this year has made a definite contribution to the year's activities. The squad is large and active. The schedule for the year has been a full one and the team has proved itself in all of the encounters worthy of the praise it has received and a credit to the college.

The students began working individually and as they developed they were divided into teams. The members have had a class meeting every Thursday morning under the direction of Miss Alice Moe and have also had several evening meetings. The team has had several open forum discussions after a dinner together in the dining hall. John Fletcher College was asked to join in a few of these gatherings.

Pi Kappa Delta, the National Forensic Fraternity, is represented on this campus by the Iowa Nu Chapter. Wesley George is the president; several other persons active in forensics have pledged this year.

Standing: R. Poush, E. Morris, B. Leonard, H. Heald.
Scated: N. Reynolds, D. Wood, L. Betts, M. England, B. Nichols.

Library

The Penn Library Staff is headed this year by Miss Betts. She has been aided by student assistants: Mary England, Herbert Heald, Byrda Leonard, Edward Morris, Barbara Nichols, Robert Poush, Neva Reynolds, and Doris Wood.

In order to give more efficient service the use of "Call Slips" was introduced; by filling out these slips students are more accurately and rapidly served.

Special interest has been paid to the reading desires of students. From week to week books from each of the classifications have been featured on the bulletin board. The inauguration of the pamphlet table and International Relations Club Book Section made available attractive reading matter for student "browsing."

Numerous library dinner parties have been held during the year. At these meetings topics of professional interest were discussed.

The International Relations Club is a student study group for those students and faculty members who are interested in international affairs. As has been the policy in former years, the club has taken a strong stand in the promotion of a peace policy.

The first Tuesday in each month is the date set aside for the meeting of the club. At the evening meetings speakers, who are well qualified in their fields, lecture and lead brief discussions. Students also take part in the programs, offering book reviews and giving special reports of the conventions attended.

The club had as its guest this year, Harold Mathews of the Grinnell Institute of International Relations. Mr. Mathews had recently returned from China and gave a complete resumé of the Chino-Japanese situation. A tea was held in his honor, March 6.

Members of the club address various organizations in this part of the state. Wesley George and Robert Poush have done much in the interest of permanent peace.

The Penn College Home Economics Club is composed of all girls taking work in that subject. The club is affiliated with the American Home Economics Association and the American Association of Student Clubs, and it appears on the honor roll of the State Home Economics Clubs of Iowa of which Floribel Andrews was elected vice-president at the last state convention.

Each year the club chooses one project as a source of study. This year the "Consumer Problem" has been discussed in the light of various articles used by college girls.

The aim of the club is both cultural and social, and a great number of social activities have been carried on this year including a steak fry for the Freshman girls, an initiation service, a Christmas party, a tea for mothers and faculty women, and a picnic entertaining the Senior girls of the club.

The first three issues of the fiftieth volume of the Penn Chronicle were edited by Robert Poush who was acting as temporary editor. Early in November Van Henkle and Leonard Hall became the new editorial team and soon had their staff organization lined up for the remainder of the year.

The purposes which the staff has attempted to accomplish are: to present to the students and faculty all the campus and college news, to consider and discuss some of the problems of the college and its students, to boost all the various college activities, and to give the students more of an appreciation of Penn College and of college life itself.

On the third Wednesday of each month the staff held a dinner-meeting in the private dining room of the dormitory at which time problems relative to the publication of the Chronicle were discussed.

The 1938 "Quaker," as published by the class of '39, is a volume intended to portray the interesting activities and events which happened during the school year 1937-38.

The only remuneration the staff members received was experience, and in that they learned to evaluate true spirit of coöperation.

The staff wishes to express its appreciation to all those who have aided us in publishing this year book. To J. Robert Miller, our faculty adviser, special recognition is given for his valuable assistance.

A Cappella Choir

During the past year the choir has been of definite service to the school, the city of Oskaloosa and to neighboring cities. Some forty-five men and women students attended choir rehearsals and participated in the numerous public appearances under the direction of Mrs. Marian Nagler.

The first public concert was given in Spencer Memorial Chapel on the evening of October 27. The choir made two appearances on Sunday, November 21 when they assisted in the Thanksgiving vesper service held in the chapel and they also furnished special music at a union meeting of churches held at the Central M. E. Church.

The choir appeared three times on Sunday, December 12, first, when they furnished special music at the Central M. E. Church; second, when they assisted in the Christmas vespers at Spencer Memorial Chapel at 4 P.M.; and third, when they sang Christmas music at the Friend's Church.

The major production of the entire year was Handel's "Messiah" presented, with the coöperation of other Oskaloosa vocal groups and the choir of John Fletcher College, at the Central M. E. Church at 8 P.M., December 14.

Mrs. Nagler has featured smaller voice groups in Friday morning chapels and these groups have also appeared before various organizations in Oskaloosa. A traveling choir was featured during the last semester and presented concerts at neighboring cities. One broadcast was given over the radio from Iowa City.

Dramatics

Under the direction of Miss Moe, the dramatic society has been revived this year. It is hoped, with this definite step towards the firm establishment of this organization, that the dramatic club of Penn will take its place among the leading organizations on the campus.

The Silver Mask, which was the former dramatic society of the college, is the hub around which the new organization is built. Membership in the club does not entitle one to automatic membership in the honorary Silver Mask—for this recognition may be achieved only by outstanding performance in the field of dramatic production. The president of the dramatic club is selected from the members of the Silver Mask.

There has been much interest and enthusiasm shown in the reëstablishment of the dramatic club. Fifty persons tried out for rôles in the play "Maggie Pepper." Dramatic club members contributed to the two vesper services.

"Maggie Pepper," the play which was presented just before the Christmas holidays, was an outstanding production. Rose Wells as Maggie received much praise for her brilliant performance.

The spring program included a program of a series of one act plays, some of which were presented at the Vocational Guidance Conference. The senior class play offered this year was Sir James Matthew Barrie's production "Quality Street."

Honor Students

HAROLD BAINBRIDGE
DAVID BOYD
CLARENCE CRAVEN
DWIGHT DENNY
MILDRED HADLEY
MILDRED HINSHAW
ROBERT POUSH
HOWARD WILLIAMS

This year eight people were chosen as honor students at William Penn College. Harold Bainbridge and Mildred Hadley are the honor students of the graduating class of 1938. Harold is eligible for the scholarship to Haverford, and Mildred is eligible for recommendation for the Bryn Mawr scholarship.

The other six members were chosen as members of the "Who's Who Among Colleges and Universities," a year book published nationally each year.

To be included in Who's Who, a student must have a combination of the qualities listed below to indicate that he is outstanding and an asset to his school: character, scholarship, leadership in extra-curricular activities, and possibility of future usefulness to business and society.

HAROLD had the happy facility of being able to get high grades, and yet not get an enlarged skull. He was valuable as the business office assistant.

DAVID has taken part in many college functions, freely offering his musical abilities.

CLARENCE has done much in the field of religious expression, representing Penn at many nearby meetings.

DWIGHT has received the credit he deserves for his work with the student band this year.

MILDRED HADLEY has combined intelligence with personality and achieved a much desired goal. She has been active in many organizations.

MILDRED HINSHAW has entered into many campus activities; especially in the field of music in which she excells.

ROBERT has done much to promote international understanding, and has aided in many college functions.

HOWARD, besides doing much for the school in the field of athletics, has taken an active part in college life.

Christian Workers

OFFICERS

President	Charles Lampman
Vice-President	MILDRED HADLEY
Secretary	Mildred Coffin
Treasurer	Arthold Latham

The Christian Workers group, twenty-one college students under the leadership of Prof. Herbert Huffman, Jr., was organized in September with the purpose of fostering a closer christian fellowship on the campus, and to witness for Christ by sending gospel teams to the meetings which extend an invitation for services.

The programs or services given by this group include music, and speaking at both morning and evening services. They have appeared at four neighboring Friend's meetings and many local Christian organizations.

The Band

The band this year has been revived as an active campus organization, and since the interest in the band has increased this year it is reasonable to expect a larger organization next year. The band was composed of:

Director	J. Dwight Denny
Clarinet	Rollin Eaton
Trum pets	DAVID BOYD
•	Frank Aten
	К итн К осн
Altos	Alma Jane Haigh
	Lewis Harrison
Alto Saxophone	DEAN MORRIS
	KERMIT CARLSON

- June 1 Once again the mighty drammer visits Penn. Only this time it is a comedy "Quality Street."
 - 2 This day former Pennites inhabit the earth and tell us how they did things.
 - 3 Ah! Ye day of days has arrived. Tassels change sides and sheep give their skins for a noble purpose.

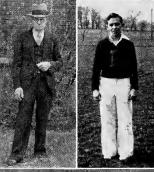

My y of how J. Harres

"Penn College, just a minute, I'll call her."

Bench warmers? You'll have to look elsewhere.

Education on the run.

"This is hash au gratin" "Don't forget to sign out."

"I'll see what I can do about it."

"Come on, Yell it!"

"The Mills brothers have nothing on these boys."

Who's Who at Penn College

People behind the scenes make many things possible and yet are seldom recognized, this is also true with persons in new positions. We nominate for recognition.

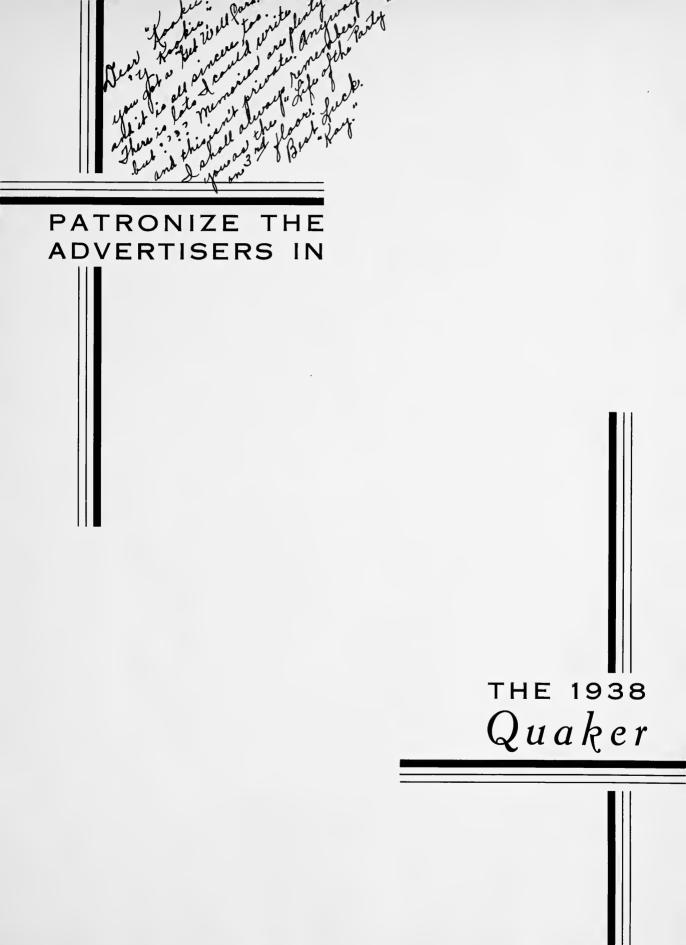

- FLORIBEL ANDREWS has been the supervisor of switch board activities. It is through her excellent management that the telephone service has remained prompt and efficient.
- EDWARD CRISS has proved that he has what it takes. He has worked his way through college by doing a number of jobs; this year he has been in charge of the gymnasium and has done a good job.
- The Farm boys, ROY CLARK, ARDETH ANDERSON, ARTHOLD LATHAM, EDWARD JONES, and LAWRENCE TATUM know that it takes more than a radio to get milk out of contented(?) cows.
- The Heating Plant gang WESTON MELSON, LEWIS HARRISON, HERSCHEL MENDENHALL, and DEAN MORRIS work while others sleep, making the "peanut roaster" give music in the form of steam.
- CLYDE MILLER deserves much recognition for the splendid job which he has done in managing the print shop and the bindery.
- MRS. O'HERRON has one of the most responsible and difficult positions on the campus keeping collegiate stomachs happy, and happy indeed they have been.
- MR. PIERSON makes "Jack of all trades" look like a sissy. If it were not for his ability to be in six places at once, things would not go so smoothly.
- DR. ROTHE deserves double recognition, first for mastering English in such a short time, and second for representing William Penn College so splendidly at the various mathematical conventions.
- MR. RUSSELL has shown himself capable of leadership in a position which is to say the least, trying at times.
- CLARICE WETTER and RUTH KOCH are recognized for the efficient manner in which they have managed the college laundry.

At the Swedish summer resort of Björkliden, which is 120 miles north of the Arctic Circle, it is possible to play golf all night in June by the light of the midnight sun, at temperatures warmer than those of England in April.
